For Better or Worse, Multi-Family Drives Construction Numbers

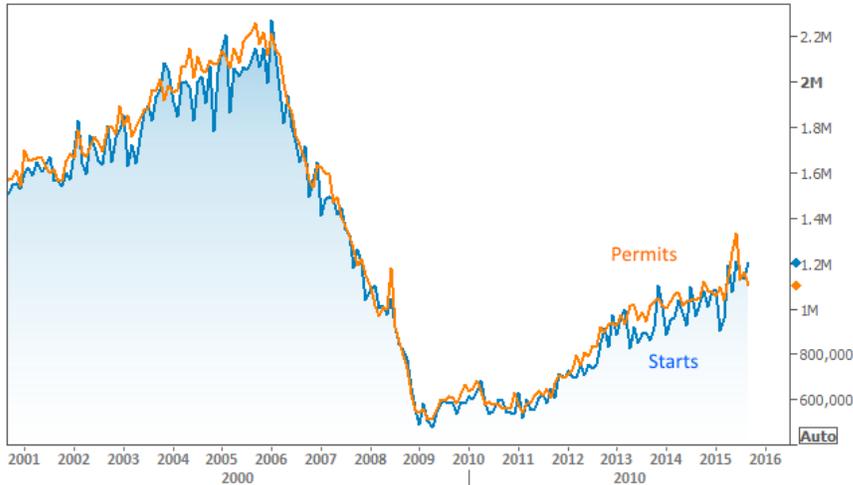

Multi-family home construction drove the numbers for most of the September report on residential construction issued today by the U.S. Census Bureau and the Department of Housing and Urban Development. Permitting was down while housing starts posted a respectable gain.

Construction permits were issued at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 1,103,000 units, down 5.0 percent from the downwardly revised August rate of 1,161,000 (originally 1,170,000.) The September rate was 4.7 percent higher than a year earlier when the estimate was 1,053,000 units.

The permitting rate came in below analysts' estimates. Bloomberg reported that the consensus number was 1,170,000 units which would have left the rate unchanged from the original August number.

Single-family authorizations dipped 0.3 percent from September's marginally revised rate of 699,000 units to 697,000 units but there was a decline of 14.6 percent in the volume of permits for units in building of five or more. Those permits were issued at a rate of 369,000 compared to 432,000 in August a number that was also revised down from the originally reported 440,000 units.

Housing starts rose 6.5 percent month-over-month from the August rate of 1,132,000 to 1,206,000. The August number was revised up from 1,126,000. The September starts number represented a 17.5 percent annual gain from September, 2014's 1,026,000 unit rate.

Multi-family starts represented nearly all of the month's increase rising from a rate of 388,000 in August to 454,000, a 17.0 percent increase and up 28.6 percent from September 2014. Single-family starts ticked up by 0.3 percent to a rate of 740,000 from 738,000, 12.0 percent growth on an annual basis.

Starts exceeded even the highest of analyst's estimates coming in at well over the consensus of 1,147,000 units.

Construction was begun on 111,000 units on a non-adjusted basis during the month, up from 100,300 in August. Single family units accounted for 64,800 starts.

Housing completions rose 7.5 percent to a rate of 1,028,000 compared to 956,000 in August with that change driven again by the multi-family sector. The total unit rate was an 8.4 percent increase from a year earlier. The August number was revised up from an originally reported 935,000 units.

Single-family completions were at a rate of 643,000, down 1.8 percent from August. Multi-family units were completed at a rate of 378,000, a monthly increase of 29.0 percent.

On a non-adjusted basis there were 93,800 housing units completed in September. 58,100 were single family units.

At the end of September there were an estimated 138,700 permits that had been issued but for which construction had not started. Seventy-three thousands of those were for units in building with five or more. Construction was underway on 946,100 units, again more than half of which were multi-family. Those number are all given on an unadjusted basis.

In the Northeast permits were issued at a rate 8.3 percent higher than in August but down 9.2 percent from September 2014. Housing starts rose by 23.4 percent and 25.7 percent respectively for the two periods. Completions surged by 60.3 percent from August but were only up 1.6 percent from the previous year.

The Midwest saw a 5.1 percent decline in permits on a month-over-month basis but they were issued at a rate 2.5 percent above that of a year earlier. September starts were down 12.2 percent from August and 18.9 percent year-over-year. Completions jumped 48.0 percent for the month and 33.7 percent on an annual basis.

Permits were down 6.8 percent in the South compared to the previous month but up 4.0 percent from the previous September. Starts inched up 0.6 percent for the month and were 23.2 percent higher for the year. Completions fell by 6.9 percent and 6.7 percent for the two periods.

The West saw permitting slow by 6.2 percent for the month but remain 15.7 percent higher than the same period in 2014. Housing starts jumped by 25.4 percent compared to August and 27.5 percent from the previous September. Completions were down 5.6 percent from August but increased 29.3 percent year-over-year.

Service oriented, responsive, competitive rates and an in depth knowledge of todays mortgage market

After completing my degree in finance at the University of Connecticut, I started in the mortgage business right out of college in 2004. With 15+ years of experience and a primary objective of thoroughly explaining all available loan options to my clients with what is typically the largest investment in their lives, I strive to always make myself available. I constantly educate myself with respect to the mortgage industry and underwriting guidelines for FHA, VA, conventional and jumbo financing. I deliver on the expectations discussed up front and provide the service level my clients deserve from day one. I will remain in touch throughout the process and continue to follow up with you after closing. My goal is to wow you and turn you into clients for life. I want you to be so impressed that throughout and after the process you share my information with your friends, family, neighbors and co-workers who may value from my services.
