FHFA Announces 2016 Loan Limit Changes

In short, the general loan limits remain unchanged from 2015's levels, but several high-cost county limits have been increased. As a reminder, Fannie Mae has a useful Loan Limit Look-Up Table which has been revised with 2016's new amounts. Clicking this link will prompt a download of the excel spreadsheet, which includes every county's loan limits and numerical codes. Or you can access Fannie's loan limit page HERE. The FHFA provided a useful PDF that exclusively highlights the counties that changed HERE. Alternatively, here is the entire list (click to enlarge):

+ These limits were determined under the provisions of the Housing and Economic Recovery Act of 2008.

* Puerto Rico and a number of other states do not have any high-cost areas in 2016.

A few interesting factoids from the spreadsheet:

- Alaska is the state with highest number of counties at the high-cost max.
- Virginia has the most when it comes to the lower 48 states
- The overall New York/Newark metro area has the most counties at high-cost max (25), followed closely by the DC/Arlington/Alexandria metro areas (24)

Service oriented, responsive, competitive rates and an in depth knowledge of today's mortgage market

After completing my degree in finance at the University of Connecticut, I started in the mortgage business right out of college in 2004. With 15+ years of experience and a primary objective of thoroughly explaining all available loan options to my clients with what is typically the largest investment in their lives, I strive to always make myself available. I constantly educate myself with respect to the mortgage industry and underwriting guidelines for FHA, VA, conventional and jumbo financing. I deliver on the expectations discussed up front and provide the service level my clients deserve from day one. I will remain in touch throughout the process and continue to follow up with you after closing. My goal is to wow you and turn you into clients for life. I want you to be so impressed that throughout and after the process you share my information with your friends, family, neighbors and co-workers who may value from my services.
