FHFA Authorizes Principal Reduction for GSE Loans

An estimated 33,000 delinquent Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac (GSE) borrowers may be eligible for a new one-time principal reduction. An estimated 33,000 delinquent Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac (GSE) borrowers may be eligible for a new one-time principal reduction program that could help them avoid foreclosure of their homes. The Federal Housing Finance Agency announced on Thursday it was offering the opportunity ending years of refusals to permit such modifications of GSE loans.

To be eligible for the new Principal Reduction Program borrowers must be both seriously delinquent and underwater on GSE mortgages, defined as 90 days or more past due as of March 1, 2016 and with mark-to-market loan-to-value ratios (MTMLTV) after of capitalization of arrearages of 115 percent or more. Loans must have an unpaid principal balance of $250,000 or less and the property must be owner occupied.

Under the new program modification terms include capitalization of existing arrearages, an interest rate reduction down to the current market rate, extension of the loan term to 40 years and forbearance of principal and/or arrearages up to a certain amount. The forborne amount can be forgiven after three timely mortgage payments and acceptance of the final modification.

Servicers will be required to notify borrowers meeting eligibility criteria of the program's terms for a loan modification no later than October 15. As servicers will require some time to implement the program, borrowers have the option to pursue a Streamlined Modification that will halt foreclosure proceedings but will not guarantee principal forgiveness. If the borrower is deemed eligible after the program is in effect that Streamlined Modification can be converted into the new program. Borrower who are not found eligible can continue to benefit from the Streamlined Modification without principal reduction.

FHFA points to the March 1 cut-off for eligibility and stressed that borrowers should not default on their mortgage or on an existing modification in an attempt to become eligible for a Principal Reduction Modification.

FHFA also announced today that it has approved further enhancements to its requirements for Freddie Mac and Fannie Mae's sales of non-performing loans (NPLs). These changes will establish that buyers of the loans must evaluate borrowers whose MTMLTV ratio exceeds 115 percent for modifications that include principal reduction and/or arrearage forgiveness. The new rules also forbid buyers from unilaterally releasing liens and "walking away" from vacant properties; and, 3) establish more specific proprietary loan modification standards for NPL buyers.

FHFA Director Melvin L. Watts, who had indicated last month that the agency was reevaluating the principal reduction issue, said in a press release, "The national housing market has significantly improved in recent years but there are still areas of the country where home values have not recovered and negative equity remains a real problem. The Principal Reduction Modification program we are announcing today, along with the changes we are making to our NPL sales guidelines, will allow an opportunity for delinquent, underwater borrowers in these areas to avoid foreclosure and save their homes."

Director Watt continued, "This plan will no doubt be viewed by some as too small and too late and viewed by others as too large and unnecessary. However, the plan is consistent with FHFA's statutory obligation to 'maximize assistance for homeowners' by providing some borrowers what could well be their final opportunity to avoid foreclosure. It is also consistent with our statutory obligation to provide this assistance in ways that we reasonably expect will not have adverse economic consequences for the Enterprises. By meeting both of these statutory obligations, the program satisfies my commitment to implement a principal reduction plan only if we could structure one that would be a 'win-win' for both borrowers and the Enterprises."

In a statement regarding the FHFA announcement Mike Calhoun, President of the Center for Responsible Lending said in part, "Despite improvements in the overall housing market, there are still many homeowners who continue to face hardship in making their mortgage loan payments, and are deeply underwater on their home loans. These conditions are concentrated among homeowners with modest homes and located in low and moderate income neighborhoods. Families and communities of color are particularly facing these hardships.

"The new program recognizes the value of principal reduction as an important tool that helps to keep families in their homes and reduces the cost of foreclosures. Up until now, this effective loan modification tool was not available to homeowners whose mortgages are owned by Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac. However, private lenders have long used principal reduction as one of the best tools to help homeowners remain in their homes and become current on their mortgages. FHFA has made a positive and progressive step forward for the housing market."

Service oriented, responsive, competitive rates and an in depth knowledge of todays mortgage market

After completing my degree in finance at the University of Connecticut, I started in the mortgage business right out of college in 2004. With 15+ years of experience and a primary objective of thoroughly explaining all available loan options to my clients with what is typically the largest investment in their lives, I strive to always make myself available. I constantly educate myself with respect to the mortgage industry and underwriting guidelines for FHA, VA, conventional and jumbo financing. I deliver on the expectations discussed up front and provide the service level my clients deserve from day one. I will remain in touch throughout the process and continue to follow up with you after closing. My goal is to wow you and turn you into clients for life. I want you to be so impressed that throughout and after the process you share my information with your friends, family, neighbors and co-workers who may value from my services.
